On the latter of these expeditions, Frobisher sailed up Hudson Strait but then turned back to anchor at Frobisher Bay, where his attempts to establish a colony were unsuccessful. Frobisher's single-minded pursuit of mineral treasure limited the exploratory value of his voyages, and, when the ores he brought back from his third voyage proved to contain neither silver nor gold, his financing ...

Key Facts & Summary. Sir Martin Frobisher (1535 or 1539 - 22 November 1594) was an English pirate (originally from Wakefield, Yorkshire) who made three trips to the New World in search of the Northwest Passage, all of which ended in northeastern Canada, near what is now Resolution Island, and Frobisher Bay. On his second trip, Frobisher found what he assumed to be a gold-containing mineral, and brought back two hundred tons of it home, where a first estimate set it at five pounds a ton.
